

RelyOn Nutec expands with new training centre in the Port of Tampico, Mexico

The RelyOn Nutec Group is delighted to announce that we are expanding our presence in Mexico to support the rising demand for safety and technical services. We have initiated the construction in Altamira, Tamaulipas, to strengthen the delivery capability and support for the Gulf of Mexico region. The addition of the new Tampico facility complements the existing RelyOn Nutec site in Ciudad del Carmen, Mexico.

The new site in Tampico will be a state-of-the-art training facility equipped with our full suite of safety and technical training services and simulation technology.

Jenni Lewis – Managing Director of RelyOn Nutec Gulf of Mexico says: “With this exciting expansion, we are accentuating our presence in Mexico and our role as a leading provider of high-quality safety training services. We consider the new training facility a key piece of our future strategy in the Mexican market, also continuously supporting our clients in the region.”

Rebeca Barrios, Country Manager for RelyOn Nutec Mexico says: “The expansion of our services in Mexico is to meet customers’ growing demand for sending their personnel to train to ensure that they can perform their job in a safe way and take care of themselves and other people in safety critical situations.

With this addition, we will have six campuses in the region offering the full range of safety and technical services, including simulator training, drilling training services, digital learning solutions and competence software services emphasizing our status as the largest provider of safety and skills training to the Gulf Coast.”
